DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 4, 5, 7, 16, 17, 19 and 20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Seebeck in view of Shimamura et al. (U.S. Pat. No. 6,265,000) (“Shimamura”) and in further view of applicants’ admissions for the reasons set forth in the last Office action

Response to Arguments

Applicants’ arguments filed 03/08/04 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive..

Applicant argues that, due to the amending of the specification, that the pending rejection is improper because Shimamura teaches away from adding a fermenting must to a wort to produce a beer. It is noted that Shimamura produces a “beer-like” product, which includes hops. It is also noted that the term “beer” is broadly defined as a beverage made from malt, water, yeast and hops. Many different styles of beer exist including fruit beers. Further, merely adding a new ingredient or a process step to produce a beverage comprising malt, water, yeast and hops does not imply that the product is not a beer. Whatever Shimamura desires to call the final product is immaterial. It is a beer within the broad definition of beer. Those in the brewing art would recognize it as such.

Further, it appears that Shimamura is defining the term "output" to include fermentables other than that which they would normally use to make beer, i.e., malted barley. Shimamura clearly teaches adding a fermenting must to a wort made from malted barley.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
